REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
JAMES A. GARFIELD,
OF OHIO.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,
CHESTER A. ARTHUR,
OF NEW YORK.

Ohio is a good State to move to if one has Presidential aspirations.

Since last Tuesday the condition of the Democratic party has grown hopeless.

The Democrats don't like the nomination of Garfield because they can't throw mud at him that will stick.

It was left to Wisconsin to name the next President. Wisconsin has done it, and has done it well.

It is no wonder the Democrats do not like the nomination. He is a candidate they can't beat, and there's the rub.

It is not about time to call the Congressional Convention for this District? Call the Convention and give us an early nomination.

Congressman J. B. Weaver, of Iowa, the man of prodigious financial ideas, has been nominated by the Greenbackers and Socialists for President.

Not since 1860, has there been a nomination of a candidate for President by the Republicans which has caused so much rejecting as that of Garfield.

Mr. Conkling can do much to gain the good opinion of all Republicans by seeing to it that so far as he is concerned, the electoral vote of New York will be cast for Garfield.

Garfield has been elected to Congress so many times by big majorities, that men used to call him "Great Majority Garfield." He will more than ever earn that name in the election of 1880.

The man who had charge of the train which bore the remains of President Lincoln from Washington to Springfield, - George T. Brown - died at Alton on Wednesday. He was sixty-one years old, and had been sergeant-at-arms of the United States Senate.

Mr. Garfield received over a thousand congratulatory telegrams within six hours after his nomination, and these came from every State in the Union, and from prominent and influential men representing every faction in the Republican party.
 This is one of the evidences of how the nomination takes.

General Grant was sitting in the office of General Rowley, now County Judge of Jo Davies county, when the news of Garfield's nomination was received. Rowley says the General felt very much relieved when the dispatch was read, and said with no little degree of pleasure, "the Republicans have a candidate for President which every man in party can vote for with the deepest pride. Garfield is one of the best and truest men I ever knew."

Although Mr. Garfield has been in Congress nearly eighteen years, and has occupied as conspicuous a position as any man in Ohio during that time, yet, until last winter, and not until after he was elected United States Senator, had he been in the city of Columbus, the capital of the State, for more than eighteen years. This shows how little Mr. Garfield cared for the political influence which naturally centers at the capital of the State, and how little he attempted to influence his own election.

Lyman Trumbull was nominated for Governor of Illinois by the Democrats.
 Trumbull used to be one of the radical Republicans - a champion of liberty and a warm friend of all the anti-slavery leaders.
 Democrats used to hate him as much as they hated Garrison. He became, like Julian, a disappointed man because the Republicans would not keep him in the United States Senate, and he at once saw that the Republican party was in its "death struggle." Since then he has been flitting with the Democratic party and has diligently endeavored to obtain office at its hands. Like Doolittle he has been constantly begging for something, and at last has been nominated for Governor. What the Democratic State Convention has done for him will prove but an empty honor.
 There is not power enough in the party in that State nor in the name and history of Trumbull, to elect him.

The course of the Wisconsin delegation in being the first to make a break for Garfield is received with rejoicing among Republicans in all parts of the State, and even in other States. In Washington the nomination was received with exceeding great joy, and especially by the Wisconsin members. The following letter from Representative Caswell of the Second District, to

THE JAMESVILLE GAZETTE.

VOLUME 24

JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1880.

NUMBER 82

Mr. Cassoday, of this city, is a timely acknowledge of what Wisconsin did for Garfield in the Convention, and gives some idea of the feeling in Congress over the nomination:

DEAR CASSODAY:—I want to congratulate you and the Wisconsin delegates on the splendid strike you made in leading the break in the Convention for Garfield.
 It was the most happy solution of a difficult problem I ever saw. Garfield is one of the best men God ever made, and he grows better every day. He is able, warm hearted and honest. He has no idea of aristocracy, is nearer the people than any man we have given such prominence. The House of Representatives was perfectly wild with joy at the receipt of the news.
 No one was sorry. Even the Democrats acknowledged his fitness.

L. B. CASWELL.

THE REUNION.

The greatest military display seen in the West since the close of the war, was the reunion of the soldiers and sailors of the Wisconsin, which began in Milwaukee on Tuesday, and closed to-day—Friday. It will be counted the greatest reunion that has been held in the United States up to this time. It was the first reunion Wisconsin had since the rebellion, and this fact made the occasion one of the greatest attraction and deepest interest Regiments have held reunions but these hardly satisfied the desire of the soldiers; and at last it was agreed upon to have one grand reunion, in which all the regiments could take part, and to which the distinguished military men of the country could be invited, with the probability of their attending.

This was a great undertaking, and considerable care and excellent judgment were required to carry it to a successful and satisfactory conclusion. The details were numerous, and the labor and responsibility exceedingly great. There have been mistakes made, and in some directions mismanagement may have been discovered, but on the whole the reunion has been quite successful. The camp ground was not a desirable one, the ground being rough and the recent rains put the camp in a very bad condition.
 There was also some neglect in procuring the necessary quantity of straw and provisions. Other details were altogether overlooked, and the delay of the Chicago Convention in making a nomination, delated General Grant so that the grand parade could not take place on Wednesday as announced in the programme. This was postponed till Thursday and the event was the grandest and most inspiring ever seen in the State. The day proved favorable though the forenoon was quite hot which made marching difficult for the thousands of veterans who have grown gray since 1865. But they endured the fatigue with remarkable fortitude, and while some were compelled to drop out by the way, the thousands remained in the column and completed the long march.
 The crowd that lined the streets during the parade was never equaled in number in the history of Milwaukee. The presence of General Grant and Sheridan was one of the memorable events of the great reunion, and their reception was powerfully enthusiastic. There was one continual round of cheers from the time these heroes entered the procession at ten o'clock till the line of march was completed at half past one.

In the procession were twenty-one companies of the Wisconsin National Guard, and the part they bore all through the reunion programme was an honorable one, and the work they did and the manner in which they did it, deserve the hearty applause, and will doubtless call forth a congratulatory order from the Executive.

Take it all in all, the reunion of Wisconsin soldiers in 1880 resulted much better than many anticipated. Whatever there may have been about it which some may have felt like criticizing, is overshadowed by its numerous excellent points and the benefits which would naturally result from a reunion of army comrades.

A BRAKEMAN'S BRAVERY.

Jumping from a Train in Advance of the Locomotive and Saving a Woman's Life.

ST. QUEHANNA, June 7.—A most daring act of bravery was performed on the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railway a few miles west of this place a few days ago. Train No. 49 was approaching Kirkwood, a small way station. Thaddeus Laney, a brakeman, who was sitting on the pilot of the engine, saw a woman walking on the track a few feet ahead of the train.
 He seized the bell-rope, and giving it a sudden jerk, drew the attention of the engineer, who blew his whistle several times very loudly. The woman paid no attention, but kept on the track. The engineer reversed his engine, somewhat reducing the speed, and the brave brakeman gave a leap from the head of the pilot, landing safely on his feet. He ran like a deer up the track, and reaching the woman, seized her with a herculean effort, and threw her off the track. The engine was by this time within a few feet of him, and mustering together all his strength, he gave one desperate bound, landing safely among the bushes along the track. The brave brakeman was slightly injured, but the woman's life was saved without her receiving a bruise. When asked why she did not leave the track when the whistle blew, she said she was so frightened that she did not know which track she was on, or which way to go. The train was stopped and the brave brakeman congratulated for his heroic act.

A SURPRISE.

The "Telegram and Gazette," New London, Conn., says: "A matter that now is exciting more than ordinary surprise, is the manner in which Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, Warner's Safe Distress Cure, and other of Warner's Safe Remedies have leaped into popularity; they are a positive success."

GARFIELD'S RECORD.

The Credit Mobilier and DeGolyer Charges—A Statement from Governor Foster.

CLEVELAND, June 10.—Governor Charles Foster, before leaving the city to-night for his home at Mentor, Ohio, at the request of a reporter made the following statement in answer to the charges regarding General Garfield's course in times past. Foster is Garfield's particular friend, accompanying him from Chicago, and making speeches to relieve the General from talking all the way along the route. The interview therefore has a special value, and may be considered almost what Garfield himself would say. "The charges against Garfield," said Foster, "are to be thoroughly settled, and, from what I know about them, and I think I know all about them, there is not the slightest reason to believe in any corruption. I also know that fair-minded and well informed Democrats hold the impression of his connection with the Credit Mobilier and DeGolyer matters, which were both investigated by committees to the foundation. The charge in the Credit Mobilier was very slight and the only connection he had in the DeGolyer matter was very indirect and remote.
 When the reports were made to Congress, no recommendation for or against him was made. He himself has fully met the charges in the minutes to date, and any one who cares to be informed on the subject can easily find his defense in pamphlet form. He was the subject of a fierce assault on his candidacy in 1874 in his district, and in the election suffered quite seriously in the reduction of his majority, but so thoroughly are his constituents convinced of his integrity and blamelessness that at the last election his majority was at its highest.

THE TARIFF.

Inquiry was made as to Garfield's real standing in relation to the tariff. The reply was that he was one of the ablest of the advocates of a protective tariff. "He has been subjected," continued Foster "to suspicion on this subject, in consequence of the fact that he was elected a member of the Cobden Club in 1877. The Cobden Club is a club of free traders, and in 1876 he made a speech on financial topics, and regarded it as one of the ablest of his efforts. It attracted great attention, and Secretary McCullough, thinking the speech circulated in England would aid our credit, then at a low state, obtained from Garfield a number of copies to be circulated there.
 He was so highly thought of by members of the Cobden Club who perceived it that they elected him a member. Later, David A.
 Wells and the Hon. S. S. Cox were elected members, in approval of their free trade speeches. In consequence of the fact that the club was a free trade organization, Garfield has been criticized for his alleged free trade views. But he is neither a free trader nor a protectionist. He is a radical as the school of protectionists is represented by W. D. Kelley, it will be found that no utterances nor vote of his can be shown to be other than in the interest of protection.

REGARDING GARFIELD IN THE SOUTH, Governor Foster said: "I have no doubt the Republicans will have a majority in North and South Carolina, Louisiana, Mississippi, and probably Alabama. If we can have a free election and an honest count. Yet I have little hope of honesty in counting the 138 electoral votes necessary to secure Democratic success. If it can be clearly demonstrated to the South that Garfield can carry the entire North, he will also be able to carry, and have count 17 for him, the votes of the States I have named.
 Grant was stronger than any other candidate in the Southern States, and it is equally true, none of their votes would have been counted for him if he needed to secure Democratic success. My plan would be to take such States as South Carolina and Florida, in which an honest count could be secured, and have them thoroughly canvassed, as we canvass our Northern States, and if necessary, would aid them with Northern speakers.

OF MR. ARTHUR.

Foster stated: "I know many Republicans think his nomination unfortunate. I consider it a wise one. The ill feeling is due to a misapprehension, out of reasons that caused his retirement from the Collector-ship of New York, and from lack of knowledge of the really superior qualities of the man. General Arthur is strong mentally and physically, of acknowledged pure private life, a man of fine education and culture, an excellent lawyer, and with a good army record. His retirement from the Collectorship is associated in some minds with alleged corrupt practices.
 The real reason of his retirement was occasioned by Mr. Cornell's refusal to obey the civil service order of the President. I think, also, that Secretary Sherman wanted a change, a reform, in certain Collec-torship matters not in accord with Arthur's views. Arthur at one time thought of resigning to accept a foreign mission, but he changed his mind."

GARFIELD AT HOME.

HIRAM, June 10.—This little town, of 500 inhabitants has been to-day in a fever of expectation and excitement. The twentieth commencement day of Hiram College opened this morning with the usual graduating exercises of the class of 1880, and were attended by a large audience; but the masser of the crowd that have overrun the town have waited in feverish anticipation the arrival of General Garfield who arrived at 2:30 o'clock.
 Twenty-nine years ago Garfield walked into this little town, then as large as it is now, a poor, ill-clad, and bashful boy, and to-day he has returned crowned by the renown which years of public service have heaped upon him. Then he begged the privilege of ringing the bell and building the fires in the school which was known then as the Western Reserve Eclectic Institute. To-day the as nominee of a great party for President, he does not forget the humble institution which placed his feet upon the way of knowledge for which his life thirsted and from which the nation has won renown. In this little town, nestling were spent. Here he "worked for his board," while he pursued his studies as a student. In the little brick building, known then as the Western Reserve Eclectic Institute, now Hiram College, he became a teacher, and finally climbed to the dignity of principal. In the little old church on the slope southward from the college, for years he was an eloquent and fervid preacher of the Christian Church, and from the church and school here he called the boys to FOLLOW HIM TO THE WAR in the gallant old Forty-second, of Ohio, Garfield's home, for several years, has been on his farm at Mentor, Ohio, but his real home is in the little town where he spent the years of his youth, where he married his wife, and where in ten years between 1851 and 1861, in working, studying, teaching, and preaching, he disciplined his body and mind, and laid on a granite foundation the structure of greatness to his country. You may judge, then, something of what his reception must have been by the 2,000 or more of his old friends and neighbors. Among them were the gray headed and dignified minister, the Rev. A. S. Hayden, who was twenty-nine years ago the principal, who kindly received the awkward boy, and gave him work that he might attend his first term of school: the plain old farmer, Cyrus Rider, at whose house Garfield boarded during his first term; "Uncle Zeke" Rudolph, who gave him

THE DAUGHTER.

who has blest all his life, and to whom the country is indebted more than it knows for the development of the character which is not the hope of the country; several hundred men young and old, who have known him as neighbor, student, teacher, pastor, and soldier.
 There was but little cheering when the General drove in front of the Tabernacle in a carriage, escorted by the band and lead log citizens who had met him at the railroad four miles away, but there were hundreds of heartfelt and tearful "God bless you's" as President Hurd said received him at the carriage steps.

THE GENERAL WAS DEEPLY AFFECTED, and only made a very few remarks, "Not caring," as he said, "to trust himself further in a place so full of memories as this."

Agricultural Comment.

By the Hawkeye Farmer.
 "The wheat never looked better," remarked the sad passenger, gazing out of the window.

"Where is there any wheat?" asked the fat passenger.
 "I don't know," was the calm reply, "I don't really know that there is any wheat in Wyandott county, but everybody always talks about the wheat looking finely at this time of the year, and I know that it must be the proper thing to say."
 "That is wheat in the field to our right," said the man on the wood box.
 "That green stuff," echoed another passenger, rushing to the window.

"Yes," he replied, "that bright, dark green stuff," he chuckled again, in dis-pointed tones, "it looks like grass!"
 "I thought wheat was yellow," said the passenger with the sandy goatee; don't they always talk about the yellow fields and the golden grain?"

"That's when it is ripe," exclaimed the man on the wood box.
 "What you mean when it's ripe?" incredulously cried the sad passenger. "I guess you're thinking of corn meal. How could they make white bread out of yellow wheat?"

"There are two kinds of wheat, are't there?" asked the tall, thin passenger.
 "Yes," said the man on the wood box.
 "Spring wheat and winter wheat."
 "How do they differ?"

"Well," the man on the wood box said,
 "Spring wheat is planted in the spring, and winter wheat is planted in the winter."
 "I have heard farmers talk of fall wheat," the fat passenger said.

"Yes," the man on the wood box assented, and, then, in answer to a look of inquiry, he added, "it is planted in the fall."
 "I thought," the passenger with the sandy goatee remarked, "that spring wheat was planted in the fall, and harvested in the spring?"

The man on the wood box said: "Yes, he believed, come to think of it, that was the way of it."
 "The winter wheat, then," the sad passenger suggested, "is planted in the spring and harvested in the winter?"

The man on the wood box shifted uneasily in his seat and looked nervously up and down the car.

"Well, yes," he said, "he guessed it was that way."
 "Then fall wheat?" asked the fat passenger, earnestly.

And the man on the wood box bit off the end of a match, took off his hat and looked into it, and finally said he believed it wasn't planted until next fall.

"Then you get these crops of wheat," said the sad passenger, "off the same field in one year?"

The man on the wood box said "yes," but so faintly that he had to repeat it twice before they could hear him.
 "Which is the best wheat?" asked the tall thin passenger.

The man on the wood box was heard by strange passenger to whisper to the store pipe that "he wished he was dead," but he rallied a little and said:
 "For bread."
 "Yes, for bread."

Special to the Gazette.

CHICAGO, June 11.—At midnight the Socialists went out of the Greenback Convention in a body, in high dudgeon, because the Convention proceeded to nominate a candidate for President without acting upon their plank, for free land, air and water. The remainder of the night was consumed in making nominations and seconding them, all declining except those named in the following, which is the result of the balloting:

FIRST BALLOT.
 Congressman Weaver, of Iowa.....224
 Wright.....126
 Dilsey.....119
 Sen. Butler.....105
 Sen. Chase.....89
 Campbell.....81
 E. F. Allen.....21

In the second ballot there was a large break for Weaver and his nomination was made unanimous.
 General Chambers and General West were the nominees for Vice President, and on the first ballot, Chambers received 450 against 250 for West, after which the nomination was made unanimous.

In the meantime the Socialists refused with a memorial and were welcomed back and their plank adopted. At 7 o'clock
 a. m. the convention adjourned all feeling happy.

AN IOWA CYCLONE.

A Terrible Destructive Cyclone in Western Iowa—The Loss of Life and Property.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., June 30.—Special dispatches to the Nonpareil give the particulars of a terrible tornado that swept through the southwestern part of this (Pottawattamie) county, last evening.
 The cyclone or tornado is described by eye witnesses as something terrible.

The storm or wind clouds were first observed forming both east and west of Wheeler's Grove, the point where the most destruction occurred, and in a short time came together. The cloud, which was comical in shape, came to the ground near the Grove traveling eastward. The track of the storm was about half a mile in width and swept everything before it, demolishing farm houses, barns, and other buildings, and carrying some of them bodily for hundreds of feet, then dashing them to the ground in pieces.

At one place a farmer's house surrounded by a high fence, was picked up and then dashed to pieces in the yard, leaving every board of the fence remaining in their place.

There were from fifteen to twenty persons killed outright, and many were wounded, while others cannot be found.
 The scene, after the storm had spent its fury, are described as heartrending in the extreme. Parents were looking for children, husbands for their wives, and wives for their husbands. Not a house in the track of the tornado was left standing, and there could not be found pieces enough of some to start a fire with.

The storm did not last fifteen minutes, but was accompanied by rain. The like of the storm has never occurred in this part of Iowa before. Doctors from this city, Red Oak, and other points, have gone to the scene of the disaster, and many citizens from Red Oak, ten miles distant, have gone to assist in taking care of the injured and to bury the dead. There is no railway or telegraph facilities to the scene of the disaster, and reports are rather meagre as yet. It is thought the storm struck other points, but not with so great force as at Wheeler's Grove.

 of 1856, Fremont and Dayton were nomi-respectively, on the first regular ballot.

 In 1860, Mr. Lincoln was nominated on the third ballot, and Mr. Hannibal on the second. In 1864 Mr. Lincoln was re-nominated by acclamation, and Mr. Johnson

McKey & Bro.

Having leased for a term of years the building now being erected by A. P. Bennett, Esq., on the corner of Milwaukee & River streets in this city, WILL COMMENCE IMMEDIATELY the greatest closing out sale ever known in the mercantile annals of Wisconsin.

Description of McKey & Bro.'s New Store.

The block will be 44 feet in front by 130 feet in depth, three stories high with a basement. It is to be built of Milwaukee pressed brick with Joliet cut sand stone trimmings, and when finished it will be the handsomest building in the city. McKey & Bro. will occupy the whole of the first story and basement. The front will be finished in black and gold, with French plate glass windows. A series of circular windows over the shelving on the River street side will furnish a uniform volume of light for the whole store. The counters and shelving are to be made of the most approved modern designs. The front of the store, 100 ft. is to be used for the display of Dry Goods and Millinery, while the Carpet department will occupy the rear part, 30 ft., raised three steps above the front level. The basement with a high ceiling and admirably lighted by numerous windows in front and rear, and along the River street side will be utilized for storage and wholesale purposes. The office will be in the southwest corner, and is to be provided with a fire proof vault and appropriate furniture. This will be, when completed, the most elegant mercantile establishment in the State, and having been built expressly for a first class Dry Goods Store, without regard to expense, it will be absolutely perfect in all its appointments.

"collared" several eminent personages--among them Prince Gortschakoff--whose appearance inspired him with distrust, or in whom his instinct revealed to him the entertainment of hostile purpose toward his lord. For his extraordinary intelligence in this respect he is highly prized by the Chancellor, who is known to entertain considerable faith in the accuracy of the "Realm Dog's" judgment of human character. The other day, two delegates from Atlanta, charged with the presentation of a petition from that town to his Highness, were received by Prince Bismarck in special audience. The Chancellor sat in his comfortable rocking chair, the "Realm Dog" stretched on the carpet by his side, while the delegates, Messrs. Nothnagel and Semper, took their seats on a leather couch facing his Highness. Mr. Nothnagel held a roll of paper in his right hand, and, being an energetic speaker, accustomed to emphasize his arguments by gesticulation, he waved his scroll about while addressing the Chancellor, disregarding the fact that his movements elicited several successive disapproving utterances from the watchful hound. Presently the dog rose with a fierce growl, whereupon Prince Bismarck, hastily interrupting his interlocutor's remarks, exclaimed: "Do put down that scroll, I beg of you. My dog, like myself, entertains a profound aversion to every kind of paper. He believes it to be a weapon!" It is needless to add that Mr. Nothnagel promptly complied with this request, obviously to the satisfaction of the Realm Dog, who forthwith subsided into his former peaceful attitude.

QUIDA.
 The novelist Quida in thus described in the San Francisco Chronicle by a writer living in Florence: "Every few days there may be seen driving along the Lung Arno or in the Cecina, and sometimes on foot in the Via Fornabuoni, on her way to the banker's a rather stout, plain faced, though in some way striking woman, with plenty of yellow hair, and a hard defiant manner. She is very well known, for a great many hats are doffed to her, and she returns the salutations with a stern, freezing little nod as if she begrudged even this. She is almost always alone; she rarely encourages a sycophant to talk to her; she appears to despise people generally, and from continual darning an habitual expression of cynicism has settled upon her by no means handsome visage. Her attire is simple even to sobriety, black or some dark color usually predominating. Her villa, some three miles from the city, is embowered in shrubbery and flowers. She shows much love of nature, animate and inanimate, but she does not include human nature in her love. She surrounds herself with flowers and plants, and keeps a number of dogs and horses, of which she makes great pets. They are as fond of her as she is of them, and they appear to understand her entirely. She claims that she can hold conversation with them, and that animals have souls as well as men, using souls in a philosophic sense, for she has no faith whatever in the theologic notion of souls. She has a regular reception day, when she has many callers, both from Italians and English. They visit her, it is said, to keep on good terms with her, for everybody is afraid, not of her tongue, but of her pen, which she uses with the most formidable freedom. She has long been in the habit of introducing her acquaintances in her novels."

WAS SHE A COWARD?

Mrs. Christie put her gold eye glasses on, and looked long and critically at Josie

Warren, walking leisurely along on the sidewalk, with little Lucy Grosvenor beside her, and Flossie trotting ahead, nearly obscured by her wide legged hat, and her sash and shoes.

"A pretty girl, and really quite stylish," she said, patronizingly. "I dare say she is quite a treasure in her way, my dear!

Where did you pick her up?" She is really quite a treasure to a nursery governess."

Little Mrs. Grosvenor looked after the retracing figure, a slight flush of consciousness on her face.

"It is certainly very absurd Mrs. Christie but I am afraid Claude is falling in love with her."

She gave a little hysterical laugh, partly on account of her own fears, and partly because of the unfeigned horror on Mrs.

Christie's face as she laid down her glasses and looked the amazement she really felt.

"No! Dr. Carey in love with his sister's hired governess—and a nursery governess at that! Mabel, you horrify me!"

"There's nothing so terrible about it—at least, so Claude says," she returned discomolately. "Of course Josie is a very refined and lady like girl, and undoubtedly very lovely in appearance and disposition.

But—"

"I should say it was 'but,'" Mrs. Christie said vigorously. "The idea of Claude

Carey, with his position in society, in the medical world, with his wealth, his popularity, turning his attention to an obscure, and nameless girl! Can your brother be so base?"

"I am not sure I think so much about such things, and of course Claude has an undoubted right to seek his happiness and where he prefers. But Josie is rather peculiar. I mean she—not that I do not quite like her, but she is—she likes to affect little frightened airs, to appeal to people to assume her everything is all right, and particularly to Claude."

"Perhaps I don't quite understand you

Mabel. You mean to say Mrs. Warren is a coward, a baby, or simply selfish and selfish?—either of which qualities condemn her."

Mrs. Grosvenor packed up her pretty little forehead, then suddenly relaxed into a merry little laugh. "Junge! for yourself.

The last day Claude ran down from his patient for a day with us, he happened to leave the key of that valuable case you have seen in the hall by his room in the lock, and Lucy unlocked it, not knowing it contained some rather disagreeable specimens of the human skin."

—Little Claude had sent down to oblige some of his professional friends in the village; and Josie shrieked and fainted, and Claude was some time in restoring

her."

Mrs. Christie looked stern and contemptuously.

"A pretty piece of acting, and very flim-sy."

"She refuses to bathe, because she is afraid of the underflow. She will not go sailing or crabbing for fear of being upset.

She never rides, because the horses might run away; she is worse than either Flossie or Lucy. When it thunders and lightens, and, if even a caterpillar or a spider gets on her, she screams with death. What is it, Mrs. Christie—fear or selfishness?"

And that wise lady answered solemnly:

"It is neither nervousness or cowardliness; it is disgusting affectation, because your brother happens to be a physician, and can be called to slay her enemies.

I am surprised at Claude's un-r-p-r-t-ed at Claude's fancy for her."

And while this discussion was progressing, Josie Warren and the little Gros-venors were getting further and further away down the breezy cliff, the brisk air bringing vivid roses to her cheeks, usually so dusky as peach to their tint.

She was certainly very lovely, and a credit to Dr. Carey's discriminating taste.

She was slender and graceful, with a certain unconsciousness of manner that was her chief charm. There was just the most bewitching look of tender appeal in her soft grey eyes, and an air of frank dependence in everything she did—something almost undeniably something that made you think of a clinging vine, or of the blue-roses that needed a trellis to support their fragrant bloom.

"You promised to take me to Lily island,"

Miss Warren, Lucy said, coaxingly. "Can't we go now?"

"I'm afraid not," she said pleasantly.

"I did not ask your mother if she would let us walk so far, and, besides, Lucy, I think she would enjoy going too. Suppose we go back and see about it!"

"To Lily island? I'm not sure you had better go, children," Mrs. Grosvenor said, undecidedly. "It's a long walk and the sun is hot."

"But we needn't walk, mamma," Lucy urged eagerly. "Bertie Howard said he'd take me and Flossie and his Aunt Annie in his boat, and I can walk—can't we, Miss Warren? We don't mind the sun, we like it—don't we, Miss Warren?"

"Aunt Annie," otherwise Mrs. Christie, looked pointedly at Josie.

"I dare say Miss Warren favors such an arrangement, but if there should come up a sudden shower, as we had about this time yesterday, what would you do with her, Lucy?"

Josie laughed, and turned pale, nevertheless; for she was extremely sensitive to "Please lose no time Mrs. Grosvenor. It is true the tide is coming in with terrible force, and the boat will not be a minute to lose. I will assist you in the boat."

And she half supported, half forced her into the boat, while Flossie and Lucy, with hushed, terrified faces, crouched down between the two ladies, leaving scarcely room for Bertie to wield his oars, certainly no possible space for her.

An agonizing thrill of horror crept all over her as she saw how it was, and even

Bertie Howard appreciated the terrible-ness of her position.

"There's no room for Miss Warren," he shouted frantically. "Miss Warren," can you row? Can you row? Can you take the boat over? I'll stay."

"I cannot row, Bertie," she said in a low voice, that did not seem like her own.

Get in quick and get them home!

Don't you see there is a squall coming up?"

Mrs. Grosvenor lifted her head, white and horrified.

"You must leave Miss Warren, she whispered feebly. Climb in and I will take Lucy on my lap."

And then Josie's strange, awfully calm answer:

"You are already overloaded. My added weight might swamp the boat. Go on! I can be better spared than any of you; if God so wills. If there is time—and her sweet voice quivered—"you can send the boat back for me, Bertie. If not, I am not afraid to die!"

"The little boat crept laboriously off to land and safety, and happiness; and Josie

Warren knew, with a deadly thrill of something at her heart, that before it reached the shore those cruel, crashing, seething waves, would have swept relentlessly over

Lily island.

She sat down, with a calm that was utter despair of hope. It was not fear—not the fear that a craven coward feels, but that shrinking from death and suffering the bravest soldier's experience; and she thought that she never, never would pass out of her life perhaps only somewhat mourned.

And he would be with them all that night.

He had told her when he was coming, when he had taken her in his arms and kissed her, the day he went back to his BRIEFLETS.

—There's a big demand for side-saddles. Preparations are being made for another wedding.

—The Bower City Band are asked to go to Waukegan each Saturday night for ten weeks, to give concerts at the Bethesda Spring.

—Charles Stewart now hastens to amend the census report. He says, "put down one more girl." She came to town last evening.

—John McMahon, for observing the legal holiday too enthusiastically, was today sentenced in the Police Court to five days in jail.

—The ladies should remember the adjourned Woman's Suffrage meeting, which is to be held to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the parlors of All Souls church.

—The Wisconsin Shoe Company is to shut down its factory to-morrow night, and will proceed as usual to take its inventory, after which it will open up again and rush business livelier than ever.

—Now it is time that the enthusiasm should wake up on the coming Fourth of July. Janesville should arrange at once for a big celebration. It has good material at hand, and can have a big day of it, as well as not.

—Hon. Daniel Johnson, of Evansville, who has been spending a month or so in Colorado and New Mexico, has returned home, and was to-day in the city. His pen has given the Gazette readers some very interesting letters concerning his trip.

—There will be a chance for some sign painter by and by. The sign over E. E. Eddington's blacksmith shop may one time read E. E. Eddington & Son. As the junior partner only arrived the other night, he has not had time to decide fully about the matter, but he's here, and that's the important thing after all.

—Some of the business men in their anxiety to make a big show, are getting careless about the way in which they interfere with the travel on the sidewalks. They leave salt barrels, dry goods boxes, harrows, barbed fence wire, oil barrels, etc., etc., for the pedestrians to stumble over and wear at, for women to tear their dresses on, and for everybody to dodge by. Clear the sidewalks.

—A few days ago an insane woman escaped from the asylum at Madison. A woman answering her description arrived in Beloit in rather an unceremonious manner. Just as the Northwestern noon train was pulling out of town she jumped through a window, and struck on the ground with such force as to bruise her considerably. She was cared for at the police station, and there gave her name as Jane Tilly, and says her folks live near Albany in this State.

—Last evening as the great hurrah was raised on the arrival of the Guards, some one threw a bunch of fire crackers near Stanley J. Smith's horse as he was driving by the corner of Milwaukee and Jackson streets. The horse sprang, and the wheels of the buggy struck the carriage of Mr. J. H. Kinney, overturning it. The horse dragged that party across the street before he was stopped by the crowd. Mrs. Kinney was badly bruised, but otherwise there was little harm done. The escape from serious injury was well nigh miraculous.

Newly furnished, everything the best, Astor House, New York.

THE WEATHER.

REPORTED BY PRENTICE & EVENSON DRUGGISTS. The thermometer at 6 o'clock last evening stood at 91 degrees above; at 1 o'clock a. m. to-day at 77 degrees above; at 7 o'clock a. m. at 80 degrees above, and at 1 o'clock p. m., at 90 degrees above. Fairly cloudy.

The indications to-day are, for the upper lake region, stationary or falling barometer, slightly warmer southerly winds, partly cloudy weather, and occasional rains in the northern portions.

A STRANGE POISONING.

Last night a son of George Sherman, also his daughter Carrie Sherman, a young man by the name of Childs, and three members of George Skinner's family, were all taken quite violently sick, and about the same time, Dr. Judd was sent for, and pronounced the symptoms those of having been poisoned in some way. All of the sick ones were in usual health last evening, and attended the great housewarming at Mr. Stark's new home in La Prairie, and on returning home were taken thus violently ill. The symptoms of the different patients differed so that it seemed impossible to state what the poison was, and it is equally a mystery how it all came about, but the physician in attendance is certain that in some way they have taken something of a poisonous nature. They were violently sick for a time, but are now in a fair way for speedy recovery. The sick ones reported that before they left La Prairie a dozen or so of the other guests were taken ill in the same mysterious manner.

Excessive Heat
and improper food at this season of the year may speedily carry you to the grave. Parker's Ginger Tonic should always be kept in the house, as it is unequalled for nursing mothers with teething children, and not only cures Diarrhea, Dysentery, Cholera, Cholera Infantum, Colic, Cramps, etc., but prevents these dangerous attacks. By its corrective action on the digestive apparatus it cures Headache, Indigestion, Nervousness, Palpitation of the heart, Wakefulness, Neuralgic Pains, Liver Disorders, Low Spirits, Sour stomach, and all other symptoms and forms of Dyspepsia, regulates the Bowels, and enables you to enjoy the fruits and vegetables of the season. Buy a 50 cent or $1.00 bottle and try it. Sold by all first-class druggists.

GLORIOUS GUARDS.

They Win the First Prize in the Competitive Drill at Milwaukee.

Their Return Home Calls Forth a Hearty Welcome, and a Spontaneous Explosion of Gunpowder and Cheers.

The Valiant Victors.

The Janesville Guards have been given the first prize in the competitive drill in Milwaukee. They have not only been given it, but they have won it, fairly and squarely, and the decision is not only that of the judges but also of the thousands who watched their drill.

The drill took place Wednesday afternoon. The grounds were in miserable condition, being muddy, and spotted with holes where sod had been removed. Milwaukee mud is the worst kind of mud, and the mud at this reunion was the worst kind of Milwaukee mud. It stuck closer than a brother. It galled, it slipped, it rolled up in small reservations, which clung to the soles of the boots—but the ground was alike for all.

There was a jam of people to witness the drill, and it was almost impossible to keep them from breaking the hollow square, of which the veterans served as line fences. The conditions of the drill were that the companies to compete should have not less than 32 men in line exclusive of commissioned officers, all to be actual members of the organization and so certified on honor. The judges appointed were General Townsend, Lieutenant Colonel of the 11th United States Infantry, Captain Collins, formerly of the 10th Wisconsin, and Captain Charles King, of the United States army.

The prizes were: for the best drilled company $500; second best $300; third best $150; and fourth best $50. Ten companies to enter.

There was considerable talk about the Chicago Cadets. This company seemed to be the favorite on the start, and Milwaukee sentiment was strongly in favor of these boys. They arose early Wednesday morning and from five o'clock to eight o'clock were drilling in preparation for capturing the prize. Many watched their excellent work, and were certain that they could win the prize. For a while there was a little consternation among the National Guard. Some of the officers weakened, and proposed not to drill against these boys, but Captain Smith told them that as for the Janesville Guards they had come to drill, and drill they would. This revived the flagging courage of the weakened ones, and to this bold stand of the Janesville Guard was largely due the fact that the drill took place at all. There was some protest against the cadets on the ground that the drill was only for companies regularly organized in the service of the State, but they were admitted to the competition.

The feeling was strong that the Cadets would win, but during the forenoon the Janesville Guards had a preliminary drill, and those who watched it, changed their judgment quickly, and the later developments of the day showed the wisdom of the change.

The following companies drilled in the order named: Chicago Cadets—Lieutenant Phillips.
Janesville Guards—Captain Smith.
Sheboygan Guards—Captain Born.
La Crosse Light Guards—Captain Moore.

Mauston Light Guards—Captain Remington.

Guppy Guards, of Portage—Captain Womer.

The following were the members of the Janesville Guards, who participated in the drill:

Captain—H. A. Smith.
First Lieutenant—M. A. Newman.
Second Lieutenant—C. F. Glass.

Sergeants—J. B. Doe, Jr., Thor Judd, Fred McLean, George Woodruff, H. P. Ehringer; Color Sergeant—Wm. Hemmings.

Sergeant Major W. H. Hand acted as Orderly Sergeant.

Corporals—E. McGowan, Frank Webster, Will Evenson, Wilson H. Doe, Charles Wintermute, Cole McLean, L. D. Libbey.

Privates—Frank Taylor, J. Irving Shea, Fred Putnam, P. Hedron, George Grove, Will Palmer, Al Wickham, Herbert Sykes, Charles Curtis, W. H. Ascraft, Jr., Frank Hogoboom, Frank Jackson, Herbert Lawrence, W. H. Norton, George Schariff, J. A. Mahoney, E. L. Tracy, George Ripley, Bud Sutherland, Charles Eiler.

Drummers—P. Hedron, John Woodruff, Charles Hemming, Walter Ains.

The following members were present, but did not participate in the drill: Will Bates, Obo Lusk, Charles Stevens, Charles Putnam, Linn Kinney, Charles Randall, Orrin Bemis.

The companies drilled about twenty minutes each. The Guards by the quickness and accuracy with which they went through their movements, called forth storms of applause, and turned the tide of feeling in their favor. If the Guards could have heard all the complimentary talk in the crowd, it would have made their ears tingle, but there was a sufficiently strong expression of approval by cheers and shouts, to brace them up and make them do their best. They moved as one man, and that man a lively one.

The heat was intense, and it was a severe ordeal for men not used to such a strain. One man in the Portage company, and one of the Mauston Guards fainted and fell like a log. Fortunately the Guards went through without a break or a mishap of any kind.

The official decision was deferred until yesterday, but of the public opinion there could be no mistake, and there was an almost unanimous prophecy that the Guards would get first money. Yesterday afternoon an apparently well authenticated report went the rounds that the Mauston Guards had been given the first prize. It was heard with mingled surprise and indignation on all hands, and proved to be untrue.
